King GabriellHere's a guy who's clearly knowledgeable about what he's talking about, us, you know, he's talking about King Gabriell's experience with girls who bully him because they're jealous of his amazing hair.So.he's like, "Hey,you know what,let's talk about , boys and girls say King Gabriell because hes got that good hair flow" and thus starts Gabriell's long monologue about how girls are so mean out of jealousy because they just wish they had half the awesomeness that is the man that is King Gabriell. It's a speech that gives us a glimpse of an internal struggle he's facing among other things.King Gabriell wants to send a powerful message to themGabriell doesn't explicitly state it, but it becomes evident that the bullies in his life exist beyond the cyber realm. Also by highlighting cases that illustrate how girls mock him in front of others but secretly came to him romantically or emotionally, we see why he chose not to keep those circumstances vague. Although difficult, this insight into his Gabriell's tumultuous past helps us viewers better understand him as a character through the lens of that event in particular, because as a standalone anecdote, it gives us a decent look into different aspects and degrees of cyberbullying among younglings in this age of the era where our protagonist still holds quite a bit of pride in his appearance while relishing an acute level of selflessness, traits we commonly see as contradicting. One gets the impression the orator has done serious soul-searching to arrive at the conclusion that leading your, you know, your average, everyday army of online devoted fans and living up to societal expectations a tall order considering how often he uses examples of King Gabriell the great. He often name-drops his amazing offline connections and tries to deflect from criticism by shifting the conversation to real experiences he himself lived through, with excellent storytelling qualities to steer it all. It is only with close friends like Mc Skrolky that Ooker can truly open up in relief and peace about being King Gabriell on a, more personal level that we may miss among all the hullabaloo surrounding him otherwise, especially when it comes to the pressures he faces as a young icon representing an entire gender. Considering that we spend so much time ruminating on different takes regarding this very particular rite of passage he's going through, which actually may look really complicated from afar, a guy wanting both genuine female affirmation AND the chance to humbly bridge the gender gap that his humility can remind you of a fleeting moment when you sense someone relishing an opportunity to become their authentic self before having to renature into the King Gabriell that's become a constant internet legend, reaching a massive audience, reaching 2.6 million players who desire being legendary trendsetters and living life to its fullest through this content. The young guy's attempts at seeking advice and validation on even darker impulses endow even brief scenes with poignancy seldom found outside the best works in similar genres. Because let's face it, we've all had those days when nobody believes the experiences we or our peers have lived/are living through and connecting makes all the difference during particularly stormy and isolated online times filled with doubt, even for the usually smooth and confident King Gabriell. In one fell swoop when it can feel like hundreds of personas online dissect the guy down before millions with one particular click, you wouldn't be erroneous to claim it often looks like everybody without a very active persona is working against this hero so desperate he is for a real tangible connection. Not unlike with realworld heroines /b/ often mocked for simply living their whole restricted truth against a judgmental audience. One cannot help but cheer when online friends try pumping him with much-needed doses of unironic faith to his internet grind ever seen fit to play by his often rigidly high standards with ever-shifting goal posts. Who knows how often these tiffs resolve to just another routine day in the life of a regular extremely chill Brazilian teen, as things tend to do? Who's to say King Gabriell never changes? Well, maybe not our avowed expectations, but change does occur on an up-close intrapersonal level between him and other guys trying to become unique, self-assured individuals. The way real guys go- the victims- support one another and share their take on articles and testimonials at the end of the day on for example: instagram stories says no words how united they feel, especially with the help of this cool fun forum dubbed 7 Games. So even discounting extreme internet folk, just people really looking to grow as men or those hoping to strengthen character and self-esteem for once can immediately relate much sooner than perceived based off what seems first. These user comments actually emulate what influential individuals in their network are ironically proselytizing -- regressing a host of aweome for your own character without being afraid who shuns. Anyone seeking a positive path in the footsteps of a virtual hero shall find an agreeable roadmap in this little slice. Many look up to King Gabriell as proof that change is actually happening within these seemingly overnight restrictions. Thus King Gabriele offers comradery; this time I bet much of online population saw it coming, bringing the 7 Games forum with it; still many readers will catch the slight hint at real personas behind the profiles as each pares down an existence in for e deeper dive rather than waiting another two years to begin actual threads of varied extra data: photos, in-game names; that the community has fostered for this exact eventuality. This is probably why 7 Games has grown more than 37%

(compared to competitors) since it debuted its popular app three years ago, allowing players to take their favorite games with them, wherever they are! Just think about it: instead of having to wait until you get home to play that new game, now you and your buddies can easily start playing, straight from your smartphone or tablet. Incredible! According to surveys, 9 out of 10 players say it's the better way to go! And you know why? That's because they let you participate in risky transactions, win cash/awards, accept bets and everything in real time, assuring you hours upon hours of unrestricted pleasure. Unsurprisingly, this app currently owns a million-person base. Talk about revenue, though! It seems to this humble commentator that they are really thinking along both short and long lines because they have announced certain limits to people born in specific provinces with big increases, showing true commitment since it suggests putting skin in their own game so to say, meaning more funds can flow, come what may. Don't hold your breath though, since the plan has its merits. Still, with Brazil reaching first place in popularity and revenue in the market (we predict a very short imminent time frame for such a consummation) and up to 950,000 iOS and Android player downloads, the future look bright for 7games, considering sporting phenomenons with a massive fanbase such as Kart Ride Extrem (under that specific set as Gabriell himself often remarks about female bullies). From the streets to popular producers praising legendary misogynistic football players because that's 'normal' apparently, and keeping the disenchanted hordes from coming after their hero really opens a discussion regarding online sports influence on real relationships. Could anyone ever safely assume that these new connections are no so different from those cultivated through mainstream gaming? How would we know for sure? It's very well possible that some members still associate mostly through their special made arenas, connecting thousands rather than only having half a dozen drinking friends (like my humble self) or fewer. King Gabriell makes himself, the otherworldly figure come across incredibly average and easy to chat with. Here Ooker gets raw and discloses insecurities about aspects which other males his age perhaps hadn't considered with today's strange educational hurdles before. No one's advocating for weirdness in private games created and set by this new generation of future masters of their desired fiefdoms, we predict will help curb some riff raff. For users of all ages this might seem as complicated a journey as an aspiring pro athlete seeking crowdfunding from random simp subscribers. Now, having both, they can further devise the main tactics which we eagerly wait to dig in deeper. Just maybe reflect that if they did decide further immersion they could expand their field presence up into real-world advertising in small footnotes instead... and we know it doesn't even need to reach the last several hundreds of mini/microinfluencers to blow, specially if they keep playing it smart and secure with a couple layers in between, reinforcing different security norms, pushing in very select moments that's enough to set it as priority because yes, market really narrows it by a huge percentage the number of trusted associates further lowering effective privacy by more significant proportions if possible compared to the general public.
