Imane Khelif accuses J.K. Rowling, Elon Musk and others of cyberstalking in France

Olympic boxing champion Imane Khelif has filed a lawsuit for cyberstalking in France, naming J.K. Rowling, Elon Musk and others. Khelif, who became the subject of a global controversy over her eligibility during her Olympic participation, became the first gold medalist from Algeria in women's boxing and the first female boxer to win gold since 1996.

Khelif's lawyer, Nabil Boudi, filed a criminal complaint for "acts of cyberstalking" with the Paris prosecutor's office on Friday. The legal action was filed against X, which means it was filed against unknown persons. He claims that the 25-year-old boxer has been a victim of cyberstalking "misogynistic, racist and sexist".

Boudi added that the lawsuit mentions famous figures such as J.K. Rowling and Elon Musk, among others. "Donald Trump could also be part of the investigation", he said.

Khelif was accused of her gender after she was disqualified from the 2024 world boxing championships for failing a gender eligibility test administered by the International Boxing Association (IBA). However, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) has challenged this test, and before the Paris events, it withdrew its recognition of the IBA as the governing body of boxing and expelled it from the Olympic Games for issues including corruption, financial transparency and governance.

Khelif is a woman and has never identified as transgender or intersex. The IOC stated: "Scientifically, this is not a man fighting against a woman".

The issue received widespread attention after Italian boxer Angela Carini abandoned her fight against Khelif in the 66 kg category after only 46 seconds, claiming: "I never felt a hit like this".

Khelif was inundated with abuse, primarily through social media, especially X. Comments intensified after prominent figures began posting about the topic.

In a message to his 14.2 million followers on X, Rowling posted a {img} of the fight between Khelif and Carini and wrote: "The smile of a man who knows he is protected by a misogynistic establishment that rules the sport and enjoys the suffering of a woman who is hit on the head, and whose dream of a lifetime is ruined".

In another tweet, the author of Harry Potter said: "I don't affirm that Khelif is trans. My objection, and that of many others, is to the violence against women that has become a sport in the Olympics".

Musk, que posee X, compartió un post de la nadadora estadounidense Riley Gaines que decía "los hombres no pertenecen a los deportes femeninos" y agregó: "Absolutamente".

Mientras tanto, Trump publicó una  del combate acompañada del mensaje: "Mantendré a los hombres fuera de los deportes femeninos".

Boudi dijo a Variety que aunque la demanda menciona nombres, "lo que estamos pidiendo es que la fiscalía investigue no solo a estas personas, sino también a quien considere necesario". Agregó: "Si el caso llega a juicio, comparecerán en el banquillo".

El abogado dijo que aunque la demanda se presentó en Francia, "podría apuntar a personalidades en el extranjero".

Repercusiones en la carrera de Imane Khelif

El entrenador de Khelif, Pedro Díaz, dijo que el acoso que sufrió la boxeadora durante los Juegos Olímpicos "la afectó mucho" y "afectó a todos los que estaban a su alrededor".

"La primera vez que compitió en los Juegos Olímpicos, hubo una tormenta fuera del ring que nunca había visto tan asquerosa en mi vida", dijo Díaz, quien ha ayudado a entrenar a 21 campeones olímpicos antes que Khelif.

Después de su victoria del sábado sobre Yang Liu de China, Khelif dijo: "Estoy completamente calificada para participar en esta competencia. Soy una mujer como cualquier otra mujer. Nací mujer, he vivido como mujer, he competido como mujer, no hay duda al respecto".

"[Los detractores] son enemigos del éxito, eso es lo que los llamo. Y eso da a mi éxito un sabor especial debido a estos ataques".
