Human trafficking and online scam enterprises

A fraud factory or fraud park is a collection of large fraud organizations usually involved in human trafficking operations, commonly found in Southeast Asia (including Cambodia, Myanmar, or Laos) and usually operated by a criminal gang. Fraud factory operators lure foreign nationals to scam hubs, where they are forced into modern slavery, to scam internet users around the world into fraudulently buying cryptocurrencies or withdrawing cash, via social media and online dating apps.[1] Trafficking victims' passports are confiscated, and they are threatened with organ harvesting and forced prostitution if they do not scam sufficiently successfully.

Nomenclature [edit]

The term fraud factory first appeared in a Sydney Morning Herald article about the Southeast Asian scams and human trafficking industry[2] and was coined by Jan Santiago of Global Anti-Scam Organization (GASO), a victims advocacy group, in describing scamming operations in the region.[3][4]

The term was used by Kenya's Ministry of Foreign Affairs for the activity of trafficking victims to Asia where they use digital media to meet westerners and sell them cryptocurrencies.[5] In Chinese, the term "fraud industrial park" (Chinese: ; pinyin: zhàpiàn yuánq; lit. 'fraud park zone') has emerged in reference to these operations.

Organization and ownership [edit]

Fraud factories are often operated by Chinese criminal gangs based in Southeast Asia.[6] The gang's traditional revenue stream of gambling reduced during the COVID-19 pandemic and their activities increasingly focus on fraud factories to regain lost revenue.[6]

Human trafficking victims [edit]

Between August and late September 2024, the Kenya embassy to Thailand facilitated the rescue of 76 trafficking victims.[5] The victims were mostly Kenyan, but also included Ugandans and a Burundian.[5] The criminal gangs who operate the fraud factories target young and educated Africans.[5] In November 2024, one Kenyan died after a botched organ harvesting operation associated with a fraud factory in Myanmar.[7][5]

Myanmar is also an emerging destination for international labour trafficking, especially along its border areas.[8] Victims in Myanmar include nationals from throughout Asia, including China,[1] Hong Kong,[1] India,[9] Indonesia,[1] Malaysia,[1] Nepal,[1] the Philippines,[10] Taiwan,[11] and Thailand.[12] Victims are lured by the false promise of high-paying jobs, and are trafficked through major cities like Yangon and Bangkok, and transit points like Mae Sot and Chiang Rai.[8] They are then forced to work in "special economic zones" along the country's borders such as Shwe Kokko.[8]

In late 2024, the United Nations estimated that at least 120,000 people in Myanmar are being held in online scam compounds, while at least 100,000 people are being held in similar circumstances in Cambodia.[13]

Operations [edit]

The Golden Triangle Special Economic Zone by the banks of the Mekong River

BBC News reported the locations of fraud factories as being in Laos and Myanmar, notably in Kachin where the Kachin conflict is occurring, a factor that makes rescues difficult.[5] The Japan Times reported that factories which initially started operations in Cambodia later switched locations to Laos and that victims were held in special economic zones in Laos and Myanmar (and also specifically Myawaddy), as well as casinos in Cambodia.[6] The trafficked victims are lured with job offers, with the BBC reporting one victim having traveled to Thailand for a job before being driven to Laos.[5]

Fraud factory workers are trained to create online social media and dating personas which they use to build up trust with westerners and engage in fake romance scams with the goal of encouraging the westerners to buy cryptocurrencies.[5][6] The targets of the bait and switch cyber crime were predominantly US citizens.[5] The process of fraudulently building up trust with victims online in order to sell them cryptocurrencies is known as "pig butchering".[6]

The trafficked Kenyans were prevented from leaving unless they paid 1.2m Kenyan shillings and were threatened with forced sex work and organ harvesting if they did not meet work performance targets.[5] Two victims who spoke to the BBC were rescued by Awareness Against Human Trafficking.[5] Traffickers confiscate their victims' passports. Some trafficking victims have returned to Kenya with broken limbs, from beatings by their captors.[5] Vietnamese charity organization Blue Dragon reported trafficking victims forced to work in scamming operations in Myanmar are forced to sell their organs if they fail to meet quotas.[14]

Destinations [edit]

Cambodia, Laos, and Myanmar in Southeast Asia are known fraud factory destinations.[9] These countries are particularly vulnerable due to their strategic location next to China and weak law enforcement.[15] Below are known cyber scam hotspots:

International reactions [edit]

In November 2024, China issued arrest warrants for junta-aligned Ming Xuecheng and three other Ming family members for their involvement in online scamming operations.[17]

¿Por qué te encantará?

Fácil de cuidar y conocida por sus frondas exuberantes y gracejosas, el Polystichum munitum , o helecho espada, que crece hasta 1,2 metros de altura, aporta un toque de bosque a cualquier espacio.

¿Luz o sombra?

Evita la luz solar directa y, en su lugar, imita la copa de su hogar proporcionando luz difusa – a través de una cortina traslúcida o rota por un árbol desde el exterior. Puede tolerar niveles bajos de luz, por lo que es ideal para esquinas más oscuras.

¿Dónde debo colocarlo?

Le gustan los ambientes húmedos, como los baños o cocinas, pero prospera en salas de estar o dormitorios con humedad asistida. Manténgalo alejado de dispositivos de calefacción o refrigeración.
