Preflop play in Pot Limit Omaha can be daunting.

There are 270,725 hands to wade through, and the all-in equities of said hands run very closely together.

AAKK is arguably the best starting hand in PLO. Let's take a look at its equity against

T842:

This garbage hand musters over 34% equity against an absolute monster.

Edges

get smaller as equities run closer together, which is why PLO feels more gamble-y than

NLH. But there are still tactics you can use to maximise your edge preflop and set yourself up for success postflop.

We'll talk about two preflop tactics in this article:

'pushing' and 'pulling'. These tactics can help give structure to the often-confusing world of preflop PLO.

Let's get straight to it.

Pushing vs pulling in Pot Limit

Omaha

'Pushing' and 'pulling' describe the two approaches we can take with a hand preflop. More specifically:

Pushing: The act of fast-playing to reduce the number of players that will see a flop

Pulling: The act of calling to induce other players to call as well

If you're a No Limit Hold'em player, you've probably used similar tactics.

Consider:

All the times you've attempted to 'push' multiple opponents out of the pot

preflop by squeezing with a strong-but-vulnerable hand like AQo

The many times you've limped behind with a small pair to 'pull' more opponents into the pot for when you spike a set

That said, figuring out which hands to pull and push with is more complicated in PLO than NLH. Let's dive into specifics.

Which hands should you push with?

When pushing, our main goal is to minimise the number of players in the hand.

Therefore, we should choose to push with hands that play well in large, heads-up pots.

Hands that benefit from low stack-to-pot ratios—which allows us to get all-in on earlier streets—function well as pushes. Semi-connected, double-suited Broadway pair holdings—think KK78—and double-paired, double-suited middling hands—think TT99—are candidates that do well when the SPR is low.

Multi-component hands function well as pushes as well. (If you're unfamiliar with preflop components in PLO, read this article.). Hands with multiple components will connect with the flop across a variety of textures, thus allowing us to exert more pressure on our opponent(s).

Here

are five examples of hands you should usually look to push with:

AA45 single-suited

JJT9 double-suited 9988 double-suited AATx double-suited T987 double-suited

Which hands

should you pull with?

Our goal when pulling is to incentivise calls from the players behind. The resulting multiway pot means we should look to pull with hands that can make the nuts relatively easy.

A single-suited, connected hand like AT98 is a prime example of a pulling hand as it can hit the nut flush and multiple nut straights. If we make our hand, we may win a big pot against a player with the second or third nuts, who came in behind us with a weak range.

Pulling hands realise their equity in a rough way—they hit a narrow range of board textures—and thus perform best when the SPR is high. It's typically best to avoid committing to the pot with hands that realise their equity in a rough way.

Here are five examples of hands that function well as pulls:

JT98 unsuited QQ98 single-suited AJ89 single-suited 789T unsuited AK98

double-suited

But it isn't always that simple

Some hands are exceptions to the pushing/pulling categorisation method used above.

Very strong hands that are connected, double-suited and A-high—think AKQJ or AKT7—may seem like pulling hands, but they are simply too strong to play as a call. Pushing with such hands is more effective, as it will allow you to extract value and thin the field, which means your great equity is more likely to hold.

Similarly, there are instances where we should pull with hands that we would usually push with. For instance, using a push hand as a pull is a good adjustment if there have been multiple callers and we don't have enough fold-equity to justify pushing given the strength of our hand.

Don't get carried away with pushing people around

Be careful not to go overboard when it comes to pushing and pulling. Just because a hand seems like a push doesn't mean you should raise it—or even play it—every time. For example:

$1/$2 PLO Cash Game. 100BB Effective Stacks

Hero is dealt J876

in the CO

Tight player raises to R$6 from UTG. 5 folds. Hero...

Despite boasting multiple features of a typical pushing hand, this hand should be folded. Since we are up against a strong UTG opening range, pushing with a relatively marginal hand like this one would be far too loose.

J876 will find itself in a lot of tough spots postflop, and will often lose big pots at showdown when it hits good-but-second-best hands.

Keep this idea in mind when categorising your hands. Don't just push or pull for the sake of it – think about the ranges of your opponents and how your exact hand will shape up against them before you make your decision.

Final thoughts on pushing & pulling

Following the core principles outlined above is a good starting point, but always remember that your ranges should be fluid and exploitative adjustments should be made depending on the tendencies of your opponents.

Good luck at the tables!

Hoje o quebra-cabeça é sobre defenestração. Agora aqui está uma palavra que nunca usei neste column antes.

Menos é mais

Desenhe um objeto que não possa passar por uma janela aberta, mas possa passar por uma quase fechada pela metade.

Aqui estão ilustrações de uma seção transversal da janela que deixam claro o que é necessário. A parede é azul, e as duas travesseiras são laranja.

Quando as duas travesseiras estão abertas, o objeto não passa. Quando uma das travesseiras está quase fechada, o objeto passará.

O problema parece ridículo - como algo pode caber no buraco menor, mas não no maior? Parece defender o bom senso!

No entanto, há um objeto - ou talvez alguns - que atendem aos requisitos. Você consegue pensar pokersenhas como ele poderia ser?

E o que acontece se a travesseira esquerda estivesse completamente fechada, fazendo-a flush com a parede - qualquer objeto que não possa passar pela janela aberta agora pode passar?

Eu voltarei às 17h UK com a solução. No entanto, NO SPOILERS. Em vez disso, discuta suas janelas favoritas.
