As pessoas que defendem o controle de armas apoiam o aumento das regulamentações relacionadas à posse de armas; as pessoas que defendem os direitos das armas apoiam a diminuição dos regulamentos relacionados à propriedade das armas.

Esses grupos frequentemente discordam da interpretação de leis e processos judiciais relacionados a armas de fogo, bem como dos efeitos do regulamento sobre armas de fogo no crime e na segurança pública.

[1]:7 Estima-se que os civis dos EUA possuam 393 milhões de armas de fogo,[2] e que 35% a 42% das famílias no país tenham pelo menos uma arma.

[3][4] Os EUA têm o maior número estimado de armas per capita, com 120,5 armas para cada 100 pessoas.[5]

A Segunda Emenda da Constituição dos Estados Unidos diz: "Uma milícia bem regulamentada, sendo necessária à segurança de um Estado livre, o direito do povo de manter e portar armas, não será infringida".[6]
