47th edition of the football championship

International football competition

The 2024 Copa América was the 47th edition of the Copa América, the international men's football championship organised by South America's football ruling body CONMEBOL. The tournament took place in Brazil from 13 June to 10 July 2024. The tournament was originally scheduled to take place from 12 June to 12 July 2024 in Argentina and Colombia as the 2024 Copa América. On 17 March 2024, CONMEBOL announced that due to the COVID-19 pandemic in South America, the tournament had been postponed for a year, in conjunction with UEFA's decision to also postpone UEFA Euro 2024 to 2024.[2] This was the first time since 1991 where no guest nation took part in the tournament.

On 20 May 2024, Colombia was removed as co-host amid ongoing protests against President Iván Duque Márquez, and Argentina was then removed on 30 May due to COVID-19 issues. The following day CONMEBOL confirmed Brazil as the new host of the tournament.[3]

Hosts Brazil were the title holders, having won their ninth title in 2024, which they also hosted. Argentina won their fifteenth title after defeating Brazil 1–0 in the final, marking the first time Brazil failed to win the competition on home soil. Argentina secured a first senior trophy since the 1993 edition of the same tournament,[4] also equalling Uruguay's overall record of Copa América titles.[5]

Background [edit]

In March 2024, CONMEBOL reportedly proposed that the Copa América take place in 2024 as part of a calendar change.[6] Following the 2024 edition in Brazil, the quadrennial tournament would move from odd to even years starting in 2024, with the following edition taking place in United States in 2024, having previously held the one-off Copa América Centenario in 2024, which celebrated the centenary of CONMEBOL and the Copa América.[7] This would move the tournament in line with the UEFA European Championship, which is also held in even years with a 2024 edition taking place.[8] On 18 September 2024, plans for a calendar change were confirmed by CONMEBOL president Alejandro Domínguez after submitting an official request to FIFA.[9] On 26 October 2024 at the FIFA Council meeting in Kigali, Rwanda, the request was approved for the Copa América to take place in even years, starting with the 2024 edition.[10] The tournament was originally scheduled to take place between 12 June and 12 July 2024, the same dates as UEFA Euro 2024.[11]

On 13 March 2024, CONMEBOL announced Argentina and Colombia as co-hosts of the 2024 event after the United States bid was rejected.[12][13] It was officially announced the same day when CONMEBOL approved of the joint hosting. It was officially awarded on 9 April 2024 at the CONMEBOL Congress in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.[14]

On 20 May 2024, due to security concerns amid protests against the government of President Iván Duque Márquez, Colombia was dropped as co-host of the tournament.[15]

Impact of the COVID-19 pandemic [edit]

In March 2024, the COVID-19 pandemic in South America began impacting football. FIFA announced that the first two rounds of the South American qualifiers for the 2024 World Cup, due to take place in March, were postponed,[16] while CONMEBOL temporarily suspended the Copa Libertadores.[17] On 17 March 2024, CONMEBOL announced that the Copa América would be postponed to the following year, taking place from 11 June to 11 July 2024, in order to protect the health and safety of the teams, media, visitors and host cities.[2] On the following day, the Bureau of the FIFA Council approved the date change in the FIFA International Match Calendar. As a result, the expanded FIFA Club World Cup, which was due to take place in June and July 2024, was rescheduled to 2024.[18]

On 22 May 2024, Argentina went under a nine-day lockdown due to soaring COVID-19 cases, which included the suspension of all domestic football.[19][20] On 30 May 2024, CONMEBOL announced that due to the current circumstances in the country, Copa América would be pulled from Argentina, and that they were looking at bids from other countries to host the tournament. This reportedly included a bid from the United States, after that bid was initially rejected.[21][22] It was reported that the Argentine government had made increasing demands for biosecurity protocols that CONMEBOL found unreasonable.[15] On 31 May Brazil was confirmed as the new host.[3]

All matches in the tournament were held behind closed doors,[23] except the final, where 10% of Maracanã Stadium's capacity was allowed for guests with a negative COVID-19 test before entering.[24] All delegations, each limited to 65 members, were vaccinated, as were the match officials.[25]

Venues [edit]

On 1 June 2024, the Brazilian government and Brazilian Football Confederation announced the cities of Brasília, Goiânia, Cuiabá and Rio de Janeiro as the host venues of the competition,[26] with the Maracanã, Mané Garrincha, Pantanal and the Olímpico stadiums used for matches. On 2 June, the CBF decided to use the Nilton Santos as the second stadium in Rio de Janeiro.[27] The government also allocated resources in the federal budget to provide the necessary support for the CONMEBOL's tournament logistics and security.[28] Mané Garrincha hosted the opening match on 13 June,[27] and the final was held at the Maracanã on 10 July.[29]

Original venues [edit]

On 20 November 2024, CONMEBOL published a document confirming eight venues, Estadio Mario Alberto Kempes in Córdoba, Estadio Malvinas Argentinas in Mendoza, Estadio Monumental in Buenos Aires and Estadio Ciudad de La Plata in La Plata for Argentina and Estadio Olímpico Pascual Guerrero in Cali, Estadio Atanasio Girardot in Medellín, Estadio

Metropolitano Roberto Meléndez in Barranquilla and Estadio El Campín in Bogotá for Colombia. Moreover, Estadio San Juan del Bicentenario in San Juan and Estadio Hernán Ramírez Villegas in Pereira were also nominated but not confirmed,[30] being finally dismissed.

On 3 December 2024, prior to the draw, it was known that Estadio Único in Santiago del Estero was included as one of the Argentine venues.[31][32]

On 15 March 2024, the Estadio Ciudad de La Plata, La Plata venue was ruled out as a result of the schedule shortening.[33]

Colombia would have hosted the North Zone group, while Argentina would have hosted the South Zone group. Each country would also have hosted two quarter-finals and one semi-final. The third place match and final would have been played in Colombia.[34]

Teams [edit]

All ten CONMEBOL national teams participated in the competition, divided into two geographical zones for the group stage.[35]

In June 2024, the CONMEBOL Council officially approved the participation of Australia and Qatar as the two invited teams, who were the previous two winners of the AFC Asian Cup.[36] Australia would have made their debut appearance in the Copa América, while Qatar would be making their second appearance, having participated in the previous edition. However, on 23 February 2024, Football Australia and the Qatar Football Association announced their withdrawal from the tournament, due to the postponement of the remainder of the AFC second round of 2024 FIFA World Cup qualification to June 2024.[37][38] Following the withdrawals, a CONMEBOL spokesperson said that there was a calendar issue that stopped Australia and Qatar, that he had already seen interest from other national teams to play as guests in their place and that he would like to have 12 teams. The spokesperson added that if no replacements were found, the tournament would be played with 10 teams (for the first time since 1991).[39]

Draw [edit]

The team allocations of the CONMEBOL members, divided into North Zone and South Zone, were announced on 9 April 2024.[40] The group stage draw was held on 3 December 2024, 19:30 COT (UTC5), in Cartagena.[41] Original co-hosts Argentina and Colombia were automatically allocated to positions A1 and B1, respectively. After the draw, the zones for the two invited nations and the positions of teams within the groups were as follows:[42]

Group	A matches	Group B matches
Matchday 1	13–14 June 2024 A1 v A5, A2 v A4 , A6 v A3	B1 v B5, B2 v B4, B6 v B3
Matchday 2	17–18 June 2024 A1 v A4, A6 v A2 , A5 v A3	B1 v B4, B6 v B2, B5 v B3
Matchday 3	20–21 June 2024 A1 v A6, A2 v A3 , A4 v A5	B1 v B6, B2 v B3 , B4 v B5
Matchday 4	23–24 June 2024 A2 v A1 , A3 v A4, A5 v A6	B2 v B1, B3 v B4 , B5 v B6
Matchday 5	27–28 June 2024 A3 v A1, A5 v A2 , A4 v A6	B3 v B1 , B5 v B2, B4 v B6

On 2 June 2024, Argentina and Brazil were allocated to positions A1 and B1, respectively, in the competition calendar update.[43]

Squads [edit]

Each team had to submit a list of up to 28 players (expanded from 23), including at least three goalkeepers.[44]

Match officials [edit]

On 21 April 2024, CONMEBOL announced a total of 14 referees, 22 assistant referees, 16 video assistant referees (VAR), and 10 support referees appointed for the tournament.[45][46] This edition featured the participation of a Spanish refereeing team as part of the memorandum of understanding signed by CONMEBOL and UEFA in February 2024, which included a referee exchange programme.[47]

On 5 June 2024, Uruguayan video assistant referees Leodán González and Daniel Fedorczuk were replaced by Andrés Cunha, also from Uruguay. In addition, Juan Soto from Venezuela and Jhon Alexander León from Colombia replaced the video assistant referee Nicolás Gallo and the assistant referee Miguel Roldán respectively, both from Colombia.[48] Nicolás Gallo and Miguel Roldán had previously been suspended indefinitely as a result of their performance in the match between Uruguay and Paraguay valid for the CONMEBOL World Cup qualifiers.[49][50]

Later, Leodán González and Daniel Fedorczuk were summoned again to join the Uruguayan referee team.[citation needed]

Group stage [edit]

The original schedule and kick-off times for the tournament were announced on 3 December 2024 and 4 March 2024 respectively.[51][52] On 17 March 2024, the tournament was postponed until 2024 and the new schedule was announced on 13 August 2024.[53][54] Following the withdrawals of Qatar and Australia, the schedule was shortened and it was announced on 15 March 2024.[55][56] The final match schedule with Brazil as host country was announced on 2 June 2024.[57]

All match times listed are in BRT (UTC3), as listed by CONMEBOL. Cuiabá is located in a different time zone, AMT (UTC4), so the local time is also given.

The top four teams of each group advanced to the quarter-finals.
