Polish Prime Minister Donald Tusk warns: Europe is in a "pre-war era", but there is still a "long way to go" before it is ready to confront the Russian threat

Polish Prime Minister Donald Tusk congratulated the German newspaper Die Welt with a shocking news: Europe has entered a "pre-war era" and is living a new reality since the Russian invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. Tusk warned that "war is no longer just a concept of the past. It is real and has begun more than two years ago. The most terrifying thing at the moment is that any scenario is possible. We haven't seen a situation like this since 1945".

Russia has changed the post-WWII geopolitical order, forcing Europe to raise its defenses after decades of military spending cuts and making countries at the borders adopt more drastic measures. On the other hand, Sweden and Finland joined NATO, and Moldova, with a border with Ukraine, follows the same direction towards the European Union.

Warning, Tusk warns that Europe still has a "long way to go" before it is ready to face the Russian threat. He claims that Europe must be "independent and self-defending" while maintaining a strong alliance with the USA.

After Trump's threats to withdraw US support from NATO and the Russian invasion of Ukraine, Tusk wants to protect transatlantic relationships above all.

Not one, but two NATO member states are now territory to resist the growing danger to Europe since the times of Adolf Hitler.

Although President Joe Biden has maintained the same support for Ukraine, Trump said last month that, if re-elected, he would encourage Russia to do "whatever it wants" to a NATO ally that does not fulfill its defense spending commitments.

Details of the Russian threat

- Invasion of Ukraine: Russia launched a full-scale invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. Since then, European leaders and military officials have shown increasing concern that the conflict could spread to other countries in the region.
- Military moves: In response to the threat, Europe has increased its military spending and supported its allies in the east.
- NATO movements: Two NATO member states that border Russia – Sweden and Finland – joined the alliance. In June 2022, Turkey ended its long-standing veto against Finland's accession to the alliance.
