Many leisurely activities are viewed as sports, so you may wonder – is hiking a sport? After all, if golf makes the cut, you might think hiking would be too!

Hiking is not considered a sport because it is a recreational, non-competitive activity.

Additionally, the lack of spectators and competitors further differentiates it from other recognized forms of sport.

The long answer gets a bit more complicated.

While most physical activities fall into the black-and-white categories of sports vs.

non-sports, hiking is one of the few that lingers in the gray areas in between.

This isn't helped by the fact that the word 'sports' has varying definitions.

Pinning down an exact definition and deciding whether hiking is a sport or not has come down to personal opinion.

Many hikers will fight to classify it as a sport, while outsiders tend to disagree! Definitions Turning to the official definitions of sports and hiking should offer a valid solution, but unfortunately, the terms are either too loosely defined or don't have enough consistency to make the decision! Sports

What exactly are sports?

Taking all of the definitions into account, a sport boils down to:

Being of a competitive nature

Requires a decent amount of physical effort

Takes skill in order to compete effectively.

Needs a level of entertainment for viewers

Since the beginning of time, sports and similar events were designed just as much for the audience's enjoyment as it was for the players.

As you can see, the common factors are so vague and different that deciding whether hiking effectively counts as a sport is impossible!

In some cases, sports need to be a competitive and skillful activity; in others, it just needs to be physical and fun.

Hiking

Hiking has a more consistent definition, but the wording seems to imply that this is a leisure activity or exercise instead of a full sport.

Each definition defines hiking as a long walk or a march for pleasure, with only a single definition stating that it is also an exercise or military training.

There's no mention of the level of skill or any form of competition.

The technical definitions for hiking don't have much variation, but anyone who has put a decent amount of time and effort into hiking may consider the activity in a completely different light.

Few aspects of hiking seem to fall into the same category as most sports, but there's still room for debate.

Pro-Sport Argument

There are a couple of common arguments that those fighting to identify hiking as a sport use to prove their point.

Physical Exertion

Sports do tend to require a higher-than-normal physical ability if you want to excel in them, and the same can be said of hiking.

Depending on the trail and duration of a hike, it can be a better workout than some actual sports.

Sports require more than just a physical intensity.

Unfortunately, just being physically demanding doesn't mean it's a sport.

Going to the gym or being a construction worker are also both physically taxing, but neither is a sport.

You Can Race!

Another common point is that racing against another person on a hike adds the competitive aspect that appears to have been lacking.

Racing on a trail is absolutely a sport, but it's no longer hiking.

Once the speed amps up and a form of competitiveness is added, it becomes the trail running sport.

This is a widely accepted sport, but despite the similarities to hiking, it is a different activity.

There's Skill Involved

Anyone can play sports, but it does take a certain level of skill to play them well.

Hiking is no different, and any hiker can tell you that the pros will fly by you on the trail with seemingly little to no effort.

(Un)fortunately, skill alone doesn't qualify an activity as a sport.

It takes skill to make artwork or create unique dishes in the kitchen, but neither are sports.

There are multiple levels to hiking, but that alone isn't enough to knock it out of the gray area.

Anti-Sport Argument

Just as the pro arguments have a certain amount of validity, the anti-sport views are also valid.

Much like the pro-arguments, each point can be somewhat turned around.

Lack Of Competition

A major aspect of most sports definitions is a competitive factor.

Whether it's between individual players or entire teams, sports thrive on the competition to drive the activity forward.

Hiking just isn't on that same level.

Versions of hiking do promote a bit of competition, such as trail running or mountain running. Some races include hiking and camping across long paths like the Appalachian Trail, so there's potential for competitiveness.

It's More Recreational

Hiking can often be done alone and is often done as a way to admire nature or get some exercise as opposed to playing competitively.

Most hikers view it as a leisure activity and don't try to take it too seriously.

Some are willing to pour their heart and souls into taking their activities to the next level.

These athletes are blowing past others on hiking trails and attempting hikes that take days or weeks to complete while camping along the way.

Key Aspects Of Sports

There are little nuggets of truth to both sides of the argument.

If you were neutral before, you might still be struggling with which camp you want to stand-in.

Sports have four key aspects, and seeing where hiking falls into them may be enough to help you decide.

Physical Effort

Different sports have varying levels of physicality needed to succeed, but they all require some. Hiking is slower-paced than most, but its physical toll is on par with some of the hardest sports out

It's not an easy activity, so it could be considered a sport in this aspect.

Skill Level

There are levels to hiking and a clear gap between the pros and the newbies.

Skill levels are apparent in every activity known to man, and hiking is no exception.

Having a group of 'professionals' that can perform this activity better than most is a step in the correct direction.

Entertainment

Entertainment value isn't in most sports definitions, but it is a well-known factor that some may overlook.S ports are a way for individuals or teams to see who is better at an activity, but it's also a way for others to be entertained by the competition.

Hiking simply doesn't offer any entertainment value.

Gorgeous views and fascinating wildlife aside, there isn't anything to see regarding the hiker's performance.

No matter how much you love hiking, no one stands on the sidelines (or sits on the couch) cheering you on.

Competition

There are hints and potential of competition hidden in hiking, but overall, it's not a competitive endeavor.

Any time hiking turns into some form of a race; it can classify as a different activity, such as trail running.

The competitive nature is consistent in sports, and hiking just doesn't have that factor.

Is Hiking a Sport: FAQS

Can hiking be considered a sport? Hiking can indeed be considered a sport as it involves physical exertion, endurance, and skill, requiring individuals to traverse various terrains and navigate challenging trails on foot.

Is a hiker an athlete? While hikers engage in physical activity and may possess athleticism, the term "athlete" typically refers to individuals participating in competitive sports, so a hiker is generally not categorized as an athlete in the traditional sense.

Is hiking a mountain sport? Although hiking often involves ascending mountains and can be physically demanding, it is not typically classified as a mountain sport like mountaineering or rock climbing, which entail specialized skills, equipment, and techniques for tackling steep slopes and technical routes.

Is Hiking a Sport or Hobby?

Hiking can be both a sport and a hobby, depending on how individuals approach it.

For some, hiking is pursued as a sport, where they engage in more challenging and competitive hikes, aiming to improve their performance, set records, or participate in organized events.

On the other hand, many people view hiking as a recreational activity or hobby, enjoying it for leisure, exploration, and the physical and mental well-being it provides.

Ultimately, you could say that whether hiking is considered a sport or a hobby is subjective and varies from person to person based on their personal goals, level of involvement, and the way they approach hiking!

Final Thoughts on Hiking

Hiking has enough factors going for it that it's in the gray area, but it still does NOT qualify as a sport.

It lacks too many points in its favor to join the ranks of other well-known and well-loved sports.

There's no denying the skill and physical ability that goes into excelling at hiking.

Clambering up a steep trail for hours is incredibly difficult, and any untrained hiker will realize that fact within a quarter-mile.

Sport or not, it takes genuine skill and physical prowess to excel as hikers - but that doesn't mean you can earn an Olympic medal for tackling your next grueling trail.

Varios ataques aéreos israelíes causaron la muerte de al menos tres docenas de palestinos en el sur de Gaza, según trabajadores de la salud del sábado, mientras que funcionarios, incluidos una delegación de Hamas, se reunieron para conversaciones de tregua en Egipto.

Entre los fallecidos se encontraban 11 miembros de una familia, incluidos dos niños, después de que un ataque aéreo golpeara su hogar en Khan Younis, según el hospital Nasser.

El hospital recibió 33 cuerpos de tres ataques en y alrededor de la ciudad. El hospital Al-Aqsa Martyrs dijo que recibió tres cuerpos de otro ataque.

El ejército israelí dijo que estaba investigando los informes.

Los equipos de primera respuesta también recuperaron 16 cuerpos de la zona de Hamad City de Khan Younis después de una retirada parcial de las fuerzas israelíes, 10 cuerpos de un bloque residencial al oeste de Khan Younis y dos más al sur en Rafah. Las circunstancias de sus muertes no estaban inmediatamente claras, pero las áreas fueron bombardeadas repetidamente por el ejército israelí en las últimas semanas. Un periodista de la Associated Press contó los cuerpos.

Algunos residentes regresaron a Hamad City, crujiendo sobre los escombros mientras caminaban entre edificios residenciales destruidos. Una pared completa de un edificio de varios pisos se había ido, sus habitaciones enmarcando a los residentes que buscaban entre los escombros.

"No hay nada, ningún apartamento, ningún mueble, ningún hogar, solo destrucción", dijo una mujer, Neveen Kheder. "Estamos muriendo lentamente. Ya sabes, si nos dieran una bala de misericordia sería mejor que lo que está sucediendo con nosotros."

El ejército israelí anunció el sábado la muerte de tres oficiales de reserva muertos en la lucha en la Franja de Gaza del día anterior.

Los oficiales, dos generales mayores y un teniente coronel, fueron asesinados en el centro de Gaza, dijo el ejército, sin dar más detalles.

En las últimas semanas, las fuerzas israelíes han estado involucradas en enfrentamientos feroces con militantes palestinos en el centro de Gaza, particularmente en el área de Deir el-Balah.

Más de 100 de los rehenes que Hamas tomó durante su ataque sorpresa a Israel el 7 de octubre fueron liberados durante un alto el fuego el año pasado, pero Hamas aún se cree que mantiene alrededor de 110. Las autoridades israelíes estiman que alrededor de un tercio de esos son muertos.

La ofensiva retaliatoria de Israel ha matado a más de 40,000 palestinos, según el ministerio de salud de Gaza, que no distingue entre civiles y combatientes en su recuento. El ministerio dijo el sábado que 69 muertos y 212 heridos habían sido traídos a hospitales en toda la franja en las últimas 24 horas.

Los expertos se reunieron el sábado para discutir asuntos técnicos antes de las conversaciones de alto nivel del domingo en El Cairo sobre un posible alto el fuego mediado por EE. UU., Egipto y Catar. El director de la CIA, William Burns, el ministro de Relaciones Exteriores de Catar y el jefe de inteligencia de Egipto se reunirían el sábado por la noche en El Cairo, según un funcionario egipcio con conocimiento directo de las conversaciones.

Una delegación de Hamas llegó el sábado a El Cairo para reunirse con funcionarios egipcios y de Catar, dijo a la AP un alto funcionario de Hamas, Mahmoud Merdawy. Subrayó que Hamas no participaría directamente en las conversaciones del domingo, pero sería informado por Egipto y Catar.

Una delegación israelí que llegó el jueves incluyó a los jefes del servicio de inteligencia extranjero Mossad y del servicio de seguridad Shin Bet y al mayor general Eliezer Toledano.

Cesación del fuego "a la vista", pero Israel y Hamas desalentados

El director de la CIA y Brett McGurk, un asesor principal de Biden para Oriente Medio, encabezan el lado estadounidense de las negociaciones ante diferencias importantes entre Israel y Hamas sobre la insistencia de Israel en mantener fuerzas en dos corredores estratégicos en Gaza.

Estados Unidos ha estado presionando una propuesta que busca cerrar las brechas entre Israel y Hamas a medida que crecen los temores de una guerra regional más amplia después de los recientes asesinatos dirigidos de líderes del militante Hamas y Hezbollah, ambos culpados de Israel.

El presidente del Estado Mayor Conjunto de los EE. UU., el general CQ Brown Jr., visitará Egipto, Jordania e Israel en los próximos días para "destacar la importancia de disuadir una mayor escalada de hostilidades", dijo un comunicado.

Biden llamó al primer ministro israelí Benjamin Netanyahu el miércoles para subrayar la urgencia de llegar a un acuerdo y discutió los desarrollos con los líderes de Catar y Egipto el viernes.

Un gran obstáculo ha sido el corredor de Filadelfia a lo largo de la frontera de Gaza con Egipto y el corredor Netzarim este-oeste a través del territorio. Netanyahu ha insistido en que Israel retenga el control de los corredores para evitar el contrabando y atrapar a los militantes. Merdawy dijo que la posición de Hamas no había cambiado al aceptar un borrador anterior que incluiría la retirada completa de las fuerzas israelíes de Gaza.
