The availability of Luke Shaw for the European Championship this summer is a major question that has never been answered since his contract, Erik ten Hag said to the local press. Shaw does not appear at United after three months, after leaving with a muscular problem during the victory against Luton in February. His English colleague Harry Maguire never played since the draw of the Manchester League in Burnley at the end of the month and Ten Hag offered a mixed update on the two players.

Asked if they would be available for the England and United trip to Wembley next week on Saturday, Ten Hag said: "For the United Kingdom I cannot say - I am not going. But in the final of the Cup we are working on it. Harry Maguire I think will be a good moment for him to be available!"

"Luke is more complicated, at this moment; I think there is no chance of him getting this but there is still a possibility. He had a setback and now we have to discover how it is." The manager of England used players like Levi Colwill of Chelsea and Kieran Trippier of Newcastle on the left, but Shaw's inclusion in the game would be almost certain to start in Great Britain. Another candidate for the job Ben Chilwell was also on the bench for the English team that has been playing with the player since March due to problems with his knees (the first was on Thursday).

United ends its Premier League campaign against Brighton on Sunday, six days before the final of the Cup against Manchester City and Ten Hag refused to be distracted by the activity during this time. "All these questions will only distract us", he said. "We know what we are building - we have to keep this process but at the same time we need to win games".

Ten Hag was also asked about assistant referees, after the confirmation of the vote between Premier League clubs next month to know if he should be removed. "In principle it makes football fairer", he said. "But there are some problems and I think we have to find solutions for these problems. We have to make improvements".
