As civis podem morrer bet88 três formas na guerra que se aproxima de El Fasher, no Sudão

There are three ways in which civilians can die in the war that is approaching El Fasher, the only large city in the Darfur region of Sudan, still not taken by the Rapid Support Forces, and they are already dying bet88 two of them. The first is deprivation: the humanitarian aid blockade bet88 circumstances are already desperate. The second is fire. Two children and, at the very least, a caregiver were killed when an air strike by the Sudanese army hit a pediatric hospital in the city last week, according to Médecins Sans Frontières.

The third, warns Nathaniel Raymond, executive director of the Humanitarian Research Laboratory at Yale University, is the bet88 mass killing. More than 1.5 million people are in the city, many of whom have fled bet88 other places. The Center for Human Rights Raoul Wallenberg concluded that genocide is occurring in Darfur again - just two decades after the world was shocked. Human Rights Watch said last week that crimes against humanity were committed by the Rapid Support Forces (RSF) and militias allied against the ethnic Masalit and other non-Arab bet88 and around El Geneina last year, with thousands dying. The British government said that the violence showed "all the signs of ethnic cleansing". There is no reason to not fear that El Fasher will see more.

The suffering inflicted on Sudan bet88 just over a year of war is terrible. The head of the army, Gen Abdel Fattah al-Burhan, and the Gen Lt Mohamed Hamdan Dagalo, known as "Hemedti", of the paramilitary RSF, turned against each other in April. The more gloomy forecasts are becoming reality. At least 14,700 people have died. Almost 25 million people - more than half the population - need help. More than 8 million people are displaced. Both sides have committed war crimes.

The RSF record is grim and well-documented and they have already razed villages bet88 the return of El Fasher. The Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF) have also worsened the situation. Analysts suspect that they see the fight - that they subcontracted bet88 much of it to local allies - by keeping the RSF occupied and politically weakening it.

External powers have fueled this civil war. The United Arab Emirates supported the RSF, and Iraq and Egypt supported Gen Burhan; Russia seems to be trying to play bet88 both sides. However, there are signs that the EAU may be recognizing
