International football competition

The 2024 UEFA European Football Championship, commonly referred to as UEFA Euro 2024 (stylised as UEFA EURO 2024) or simply Euro 2024, will be the 17th edition of the UEFA European Championship, the quadrennial international football championship organised by UEFA for the men's national teams of its member associations. Germany will host the tournament, which is scheduled to take place from 14 June to 14 July 2024 and the winner will later compete in the 2025 CONMEBOL–UEFA Cup of Champions against the 2024 Copa América winner.

It will be the third time that European Championship matches are played on German territory and the second time in reunified Germany, as the former West Germany hosted the tournament of 1988, and four matches of the multi-national Euro 2024 were played in Munich. It will be the first time the competition is held in what was formerly East Germany with Leipzig as a host city, as well as the first time that a reunified Germany serves as a solo host nation.[1] The tournament will return to its usual four-year cycle, after the 2024 edition was postponed to 2024 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Italy are the defending champions, having won the 2024 tournament after beating England on penalties in the final.[2]

Host selection [edit]

On 8 March 2024, UEFA announced that two countries, Germany and Turkey, had announced their intentions to host the tournament before the deadline of 3 March 2024.[3][4]

The host was selected on 27 September 2024 in Nyon, Switzerland.[5] Germany initially planned to fully host Euro 2024 although never announced any firm interest by May 2012.[6]

Voting results Country Votes 12 4 Abstention 1 Total 17

The UEFA Executive Committee voted for the host in a secret ballot, with only a simple majority required to determine the host. In the event of a tie, the UEFA President would cast the decisive vote.[7] Of the 20 members of the Executive Committee, two were ineligible to vote and one was absent, leaving a total of seventeen voting members.[8]

Venues [edit]

Germany had a wide choice of stadiums that satisfied UEFA's minimum capacity requirement of 30,000 seats for European Championship matches.

Of the ten venues selected for Euro 2024, nine were used for the 2006 FIFA World Cup: Berlin, Dortmund, Munich, Cologne, Stuttgart, Hamburg, Leipzig, Frankfurt, and Gelsenkirchen.[9][10] Düsseldorf, which was not used in 2006 but had previously been used for the 1974 FIFA World Cup and UEFA Euro 1988, will serve as the tenth venue; conversely, Hanover, Nuremberg and Kaiserslautern, host cities in 2006 (in addition to 1974 and 1988 in Hanover's case), will not be used for this championship. Munich was also a host city at the multi-national UEFA Euro 2024 tournament, hosting four matches (three involving Germany) in front of a greatly reduced number of spectators due to COVID-19 restrictions.

Various other stadiums, such as those in Bremen and Mönchengladbach, were not selected.[11]

The venues covered all the main regions of Germany, but the area with the highest number of venues at UEFA Euro 2024 is the Rhine-Ruhr metropolitan region in the state of North Rhine-Westphalia, with four of the ten host cities (Dortmund, Düsseldorf, Gelsenkirchen and Cologne).[12]

Team base camps [edit]

Each team chose a "team base camp" for its stay between the matches. The teams will train and reside in these locations throughout the tournament, travelling to games staged away from their bases. The "team base camp" needs to be in Germany.[13]

Teams [edit]

Qualification [edit]

As hosts, Germany qualified for the tournament automatically. The 23 remaining spots will be determined by a qualifying tournament; 20 spots were decided by the direct qualification of the winners and runners-up of the 10 qualifying groups, with the remaining three spots decided by play-offs.[29] Places in the play-offs were given to the teams that performed the best in the 2024–23 UEFA Nations League who did not already qualify via the main qualifying tournament.[30] The draw for the UEFA Euro 2024 qualifying group stage was held on 9 October 2024 at the Festhalle in Frankfurt.[31][32] The qualifying group stage took place from March to November 2024, while the three play-offs will be held in March 2024.[33]

Qualified teams [edit]

Of the 24 teams set to qualify for the tournament, 17 have returned from the previous edition. Among them were the defending champions Italy and runners-up England, as well as World Cup runners-up France and bronze medalist Croatia. Portugal were the only team to qualify with a flawless record, whilst France, England, Belgium, Hungary, and Romania qualified without a loss. Albania and Romania returned after missing out on the pan-continental finals, the former qualifying for only their second major tournament. Serbia and Slovenia both returned for the first time since Euro 2000, with Serbia qualifying for the first time in its current iteration and Slovenia qualifying for their fourth major tournament as an independent nation.

Sweden failed to reach the finals for the first time since Euro 1996 and failed to qualify for their second major tournament in a row, missing out on 2024 World Cup as well, whilst Russia were barred from the qualifiers altogether in the aftermath of the country's invasion of Ukraine, the first time a national team had been banned from the competition since FR Yugoslavia in 1992. Having made their debut at the previous edition, North Macedonia failed to qualify for this edition.

Disqualification of Russia [edit]

At a meeting of the UEFA Executive Committee in Hvar, Croatia, on 20 September 2024, it was confirmed that Russia would be excluded from qualifying for Euro 2024, all Russian teams having been suspended by UEFA following the country's invasion of Ukraine in February 2024.[35] This meant Russia would not appear at the European Championship finals for the first time since 2000. Final draw [edit]

The final tournament draw took place on 2 December 2024, 18:00 CET, at the Elbphilharmonie in Hamburg.[36] The teams were seeded in accordance with the overall European Qualifiers rankings. Hosts Germany were automatically seeded into pot 1, and placed in position A1. The three play-off winners were not known at the time of the draw, and the teams participating in those play-offs, scheduled to be held in March 2024, were placed into pot 4 for the draw.[37][38] The draw was disrupted by sexual noises whilst it was taking place, as the result of a prankster.[39][40]

Pot 1: Germany (Host), group winners ranked 1–5

Pot 2: Group winners ranked 6–10, group runner-up ranked 1 (6–11 overall)

Pot 3: Group runners-up ranked 2–7 (12–17 overall)

Pot 4: Group runners-up ranked 8–10 (18–20 overall), play-off winners A–C (identity unknown at the time of the draw)

Group stage [edit]

UEFA announced the tournament schedule on 10 May 2024, which only included kick-off times for the opening match, semi-finals, and final.[41][42] The kick-off times for all other matches were announced on 2 December 2024 following the draw.[43][44]

Group winners, runners-up and the best four third-placed teams will advance to the round of 16. All times are local, CEST (UTC+2).

Tiebreakers [edit]

If two or more teams are equal on points on completion of the group matches, the following tie-breaking criteria are applied:[37]

Higher number of points obtained in the matches played between the teams in question; Superior goal difference resulting from the matches played between the teams in question; Higher number of goals scored in the matches played between the teams in question; If, after having applied criteria 1 to 3, teams still have an equal ranking, criteria 1 to 3 are reapplied exclusively to the matches between the teams who are still level to determine their final rankings.[a] If this procedure does not lead to a decision, criteria 5 to 10 will apply; Superior goal difference in all group matches; Higher number of goals scored in all group matches; If on the last round of the group stage, two teams who are facing each other are tied in points, goal difference and goals scored then they drew their match, their ranking is determined by a penalty shoot-out. (This criterion is not used if more than two teams had the same number of points.); Lower disciplinary points total in all group matches (1 point for a single yellow card, 3 points for a red card as a consequence of two yellow cards, 3 points for a direct red card, 4 points for a yellow card followed by a direct red card); Higher position in the European Qualifiers overall ranking, unless the comparison involves hosts Germany, in which case a drawing of lots will take place.

Notes

^ If there is a three-way tie on points, the application of the first three criteria may only break the tie for one of the teams, leaving the other two teams still tied. In this case, the tiebreaking procedure is resumed, from the beginning, for the two teams that are still tied.

Knockout phase [edit]

In the knockout phase, if a match is level at the end of normal playing time, extra time is played (two periods of 15 minutes each). If still tied after extra time, the match is decided by a penalty shoot-out.[37]

As with every tournament since UEFA Euro 1984, there is no third place play-off.
