Football juggling and tricks

Freestyle football is the art of juggling a football using any part of the body, excluding the elbows to the hands.

It combines football tricks, dance, acrobatics and music to entertain onlookers and compete with opponents.

The official governing body for this sport is known as the World Freestyle Football Association (WFFA).

[1][2]History [ edit ]

The art of freestyle football can be traced to games of Southeast Asia such as chinlone, jianzi and sepak takraw, which have been practised for 2,000 years.

Fundamental freestyle tricks such as the 'Neck Stall' and 'Around The World' were first popularly performed in the West by circus performers, notably including Enrico Rastelli and Francis Brunn.[3][4]

In the 1970s and 1980s, Argentine footballer Diego Maradona famously brought his freestyle 'Life is Life' warm-up to international attention while playing for SSC Napoli.

The ability to freestyle, however, was widely criticized at the time as not having direct relevance to playing the game of football.[citation needed]

At the beginning of the 21st century, several significant events helped elevate freestyle football with broader recognition.

Brazilian footballer Ronaldinho starred in Nike advertising campaigns such as 'Joga Bonito' (English: The Beautiful Game), which popularized the ability to practice alone with a ball and develop new moves and tricks.[5]

Inspired by Maradona, South Korean footballer Mr Woo sought to become a football entertainer. He established Guinness world records and performed at the 1988 Summer Olympics opening ceremony, and the FIFA World Cups in 1990 and 1994.

[6] Soufiane Touzani[7] from the Netherlands introduced a new style of lower tricks, which were popularized through viral videos.

[7][better source needed]

Footballer Sandy Levittas ( a.k.a.

Bambiball) was among the first women to share videos of her freestyle skills,[8][9] which inspired more girls to take up the sport.

[10][11] Different styles were then developed such as lowers, uppers, sit-downs, grounds and blocking.

In 2015, Ronaldinho was recognized by the World Freestyle Football Association (WFFA) as ambassador for the sport.

[4][timeframe?] Competitions have been organized across the globe and videos have been shared by over 80 million of people on a monthly basis.

[12][failed verification]

In recent years, some of the top football players in the world have credited freestyle and street football cultures for helping to develop their talents.

These athletes have included Neymar Jr,[13][14] Cristiano Ronaldo, Lionel Messi and Zlatan Ibrahimović.

[citation needed]Tricks [ edit ]

Tricks or moves in freestyle football are categorized into different disciplines or styles:

Lower body or air move tricks are performed while standing, and use the feet or legs.(lowers)

Upper body tricks are performed with the head, chest and shoulders.(uppers)

Sitting tricks are performed while seated, often with the legs elevated.(sit-downs)

Ground move tricks are performed while standing with the ball on the floor.

[ further explanation needed ] Skillful players can make the performance of ground moves seem like a choreographed dance.

Skillful players can make the performance of ground moves seem like a choreographed dance.

Blocking tricks are performed by holding the ball with various parts of the lower body.

It is a style inspired by breakdancing.

Acrobatic tricks are inspired by circus skills, breakdancing and gymnastics.

Transitions are intermediate moves used to bridge tricks in different styles, ideally in a fluid motion.

Within the above disciplines, the following individual moves are among the most popular:

Around the World (ATW), a move in which the freestyler plays the ball off of one foot, which then circles up and over the ball before returning underneath to play the ball again.

An inside ATW makes the initial movement toward the opposite leg, while an outside ATW makes the initial movement away from the opposite leg.

Crossover, a move in which the ball is kicked into the air with one leg, and the opposite leg goes around the ball while it is in the air.

Toe Bounce (TB) a move like a crossover but with the ball bouncing on the foot.

Hop the World (HTW), a move in which the ball is kicked up with one foot and circled with the opposite foot.

[ clarification needed ] Touzani around the World (TATW), a variation of an outside ATW and a crossover.

[ further explanation needed ] Created by Soufiane Touzani from the Netherlands.

[ citation needed ] Mitchy around the World (MATW), as with the TATW except with an inside ATW.

Created by Mitchell James Penn from the UK.

[ citation needed ] Lemmens Around the World (LATW), a double ATW, circling the foot twice around the airborne ball without a middle touch between revolutions.

[ citation needed ] Palle Around the World (PATW), a triple ATW.

Created by Rickard "Palle" Sjölander of Sweden.[ citation needed ]

Stalls, moves which involve catching the ball in a stationary position.

This is commonly on the back of the neck but also includes balancing on the forehead or wedged between the heel and thigh.

Clipper, a move that originated from freestyle footbag in which the freestyler catches the ball midair with the inside of the foot on the side of the body.

Combos, moves which directly connect tricks without juggling the ball.

No-touch combos, tricks performed in one motion without any intermediate ball touch.

For example, the LATW is a two ATW no-touch combo.

Competitive freestyle [ edit ]

The first major competition for freestyle football was Red Bull Street Style (RBSS) in 2008, which was hosted in São Paulo, Brazil.

[citation needed] Séan Garnier won this competition with a style that had not been seen in the public eye before.[citation needed]

Super Ball, the first open world championship (where anyone could compete) catered to freestylers with ranging styles, recognizing the many ways to judge a freestyler.

Hosted in the Czech Republic, Super Ball became the premiere annual international event for freestylers.[citation needed]

As America's Cup se distancia del Reino Unido, Nueva Zelanda domina la competición

Las posibilidades de que la America's Cup regrese al Reino Unido después de una ausencia de 60 años se han reducido aún más el domingo, ya que el poderoso equipo de Nueva Zelanda estableció una ventaja de tres carreras en la mejor de las siete, 13-carrera competición.

La cuarta carrera planificada se canceló ya que los vientos no alcanzaron el mínimo de 6,5 nudos y se llevará a cabo como una carrera única el lunes. Si el tiempo lo permite, el programa de dos carreras se reanuda el miércoles. El equipo británico Ineos puede sentirse aliviado de que la segunda carrera del domingo se canceló después de una exhibición de superioridad de Nueva Zelanda en las tres primeras carreras que El Mundo Deportivo describió como "casi insultante".

El equipo de Nueva Zelanda repite la victoria en la segunda jornada

En el día dos del enfrentamiento, la Carrera 3 resultó ser prácticamente una réplica de las dos primeras carreras. En un día soleado y cálido con un viento del noreste ligero de 7-10 nudos, una vez más el barco ETNZ hizo un mejor y más agresivo comienzo y estableció una cómoda ventaja. Los dos barcos casi chocan en la línea de salida, por la que los británicos pagaron con una penalización de 75 metros por no mantenerse lo suficientemente alejados, de la que nunca se recuperaron.

Al final de la primera etapa, Nueva Zelanda tenía una ventaja de 150 m, extendiendo su ventaja a 400 m por la cuarta pierna antes de cruzar la línea con más de 600 m de agua clara, 52 segundos por delante de Ineos Britannia, habiendo liderado en cada etapa. En cada virada parecían tener una mejor aceleración que sus rivales.

El maniobra en la línea de salida cuestionada

Cuando se le preguntó sobre la maniobra en la línea de salida, Peter Burling, el capitán de NZ, dijo que el equipo había estado "trabajando en pequeños detalles", agregando: "Lo intentamos ayer y se colaron justo por delante. Fue incómodo cómo cerca estuvieron los barcos, pero fue genial finalmente ejecutarlo en una carrera, para que cuente."

"Fue un momento increíble en el que hemos estado practicando mucho", dijo el entrenador del

Equipo de Nueva Zelanda, Ray Davies. "Fue genial ver un poco de match racing entrar en juego. Ben [Ainslie, el capitán británico] ha estado pidiendo a alguien que lo haga durante mucho tiempo. Fue bueno que fuéramos nosotros quienes se lo dimos a él", dijo. Ainslie, sintió que la sanción de su equipo en la salida de la carrera fue una decisión dura.

"Sentíamos que estábamos manteniendo una distancia, pero los árbitros no lo vieron así", dijo, agregando que aceptaba la decisión.

La técnica es igual, pero Nueva Zelanda es mejor

En general, se considera que, técnicamente, no hay mucho que elegir entre los barcos británicos y de Nueva Zelanda y que, en última instancia, cuenta el piloto.

"No estamos bajo ninguna ilusión", dijo Burling. "Son un equipo increíble y van a armar una pelea infernal, así que esperamos una batalla en cada carrera, pero estamos listos para ello".

La fiebre de la America's Cup comienza a extenderse en Barcelona

La gente de Barcelona ha sido en gran medida indiferente a una competición que comenzó hace dos meses y los barcos han sido visibles en el puerto desde el comienzo del año.

Sin embargo, a partir del sábado, han surgido signos de que la fiebre de la America's Cup finalmente está comenzando a propagarse. Las zonas de fanáticos estaban abarrotadas el domingo, con fanáticos británicos superados en número abrumadoramente por los seguidores de Nueva Zelanda, muchos de ellos usando la camiseta del equipo ETNZ. Además, docenas de barcos, grandes y pequeños, se aglomeran en los bordes de la zona de carreras para dar a los fanáticos una vista más cercana.

Sin embargo, no todos en Barcelona están felices con la competencia que se lleva a cabo aquí, y la oposición ha ido creciendo en los últimos meses.

Dos horas antes de que comenzara la carrera del domingo, miles de personas - 10,000 según los organizadores - se unieron a una protesta organizada por la campaña "No a la America's Cup", que cuenta con el apoyo de alrededor de 140 organizaciones locales y de la comunidad.

Los manifestantes dicen que albergar estos eventos solo beneficia a los ricos y contribuye al aumento de los costos de la vivienda, expulsando a los residentes de sus hogares. La campaña también está presentando un caso ante la oficina antifraude sobre la base de que los organizadores han realizado declaraciones falsas y grossamente infladas sobre los beneficios económicos para la ciudad de albergar el evento.

Técnicamente, la carrera podría continuar durante otros ocho días, pero el equipo británico debe saber que tendrán que mejorar su juego si no quieren encontrarse regresando a casa el viernes con una puntuación de 7-0.
