Mexico's Senate Approves Profound Judicial Changes

The Mexican Senate approved in general form the sweeping judicial changes that judges will be elected by popular vote, a profound transformation that critics fear will threaten the state of law and harm the economy.

The Senate will now debate reservations raised by legislators before giving final approval to the reform proposed by outgoing President Andrés Manuel López Obrador, and which passed in the lower chamber last week.

Senators voted 86 to 41 in favor of the general approval.

Miguel Ángel Yunes, of the opposition PAN party, on Wednesday broke ranks to say he would support the changes, a move that helped the ruling Morena party and its allies reach the two-thirds majority needed to approve the constitutional reform.

The main commercial partners of Mexico, the US and Canada, warned that the reform could undermine the USMCA trade pact and negatively affect investments.

The proposal also shocked the markets, with the Mexican peso falling 17% since the June 6 elections, which resulted in a decisive victory for Morena.

While senators debated the changes on Wednesday, protesters invaded the Senate building waving Mexican flags and shouting "traitors", forcing an interruption of the session.

Opposition legislators accused the ruling bloc of using underhanded tactics to ensure the necessary votes, claiming that one senator was threatened with a bribe to prevent him from voting while others were pressured or offered bribes. The Morena party denied the allegations.

López Obrador and the newly elected president, Claudia Sheinbaum, defend the reform vigorously as vital to maintaining the integrity of the Mexican justice system and ensuring it serves the people rather than the interests of the powerful. Critics, however, fear it will be a worrying concentration of power in the hands of Morena.

The reform, which the lower chamber approved last week, calls for the election of more than 6,500 judges and magistrates, including the Supreme Court.

It also reduces the number of judges on the Supreme Court from 11 to 9, shortens the term of office from 12 to 6 years, abolishes the minimum age requirement of 35 years and reduces the required experience from half a century to five years.

Sheinbaum, who takes office on October 2, will be in charge of managing the consequences of the reform, which carries the risk of dominating the first months of her mandate.
