Israel hit a city in the West Bank occupied by two air strikes on Saturday, the last use of a rare win 1 bet tactic densely populated. Hamas said that three members of the win 1 bet military wing and six other combatants were killed in the bombings around the municipality of Tulkarm on Saturday.

In one of the attacks, a drone strike killed five people in a win 1 bet vehicle, according to Palestinian media that includes a local leader of the Brigades Qassan (Qassam Brigade), the military wing of Hamas. The statement also said: "Three deaths belong to the group Kazaqam", but did not claim the other six combatants as members.

The Israeli military said they had targeted "terrorists" in the attacks on Saturday, part of the win 1 bet operation in Tulkarm without identifying specific targets.

He also said: those in the vehicle were on their way to carry out an attack.

The Israeli military also closed roads in Tulkarm, leaving residents without a way out. Palestinian media published photos showing Israeli tractors tearing up sections of the road.

Israeli forces also carry out more frequent and deadly air strikes in the territory, an increase in attacks since the second Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation in win 1 bet 2000.

Before October 7, air strikes and drones in the West Bank were rare in Gaza. But since the war began, Israel has intensified its attacks against Palestinian areas more restricted in the country.

The two Palestinian territories have been under separate governments for a long time. Hamas governed Gaza for 17 years before the war broke out in win 1 bet October, while the Palestinian Authority dominated the West Bank and Israel.

The Israeli army carried out at least 39 air strikes against Tulkarm in the last 10 months, according to the United Nations. The figure does not include the bombings on Saturday (22).

In one of the most recent attacks on win 1 bet July 22, a drone strike killed five Palestinians - including two women - in the town of Tulkarm, according to the UN.

At least 589 Palestinians were killed in the West Bank by Israeli forces or Jewish settlers since October 7. Some were members of Palestinian armed groups that fight against Israeli occupation, but others are civilians, according to the media and health authorities in Palestine - among them 142 children under 18 years old (the Palestinian Ministry of Health reported last month).

Rawan Sheikh Ahmad contributed to the report.
