Brazilian journalist shares insights on new law that benefits thousands of Brazilians seeking Portuguese citizenship

São Paulo, April 1, 2024 - 02:13 AM - A new law that entered into force today in Portugal is expected to benefit thousands of Brazilians who have been waiting for years to obtain Portuguese citizenship. The law simplifies the process for those who have been living in Portugal for at least five years, allowing them to apply for citizenship without the need for a residence authorization. Brazilian journalist Ysla Xavier, 27, who works as an assistant at a dental clinic in Lisbon, is one of the beneficiaries of the new law. She applied for a residence permit in 2024 but only received authorization in November 2024. With the new law, she can now apply for citizenship, which will give her the same rights as Portuguese citizens.

"I'm very happy that I can now apply for citizenship. It's a dream come true," said Xavier. "With citizenship, I'll have more job opportunities, and I'll be able to travel more easily," she added. The new law, which was approved by the Portuguese parliament, is expected to benefit thousands of Brazilians who have been living in Portugal for years but have not been able to obtain citizenship due to the long wait for residence authorization.

According to Karine Egypto, a coordinator at the consulting firm Destinos Objetivos, the law change is a form of compensation for the delay caused by the state. "The long waiting period was not being considered, and this change seeks to do justice to those who submitted their application and had to wait years for the process to be completed," said Egypto.

The new law allows those who have lived in Portugal for at least five years to apply for citizenship, regardless of their immigration status. This means that thousands of Brazilians who have been living in Portugal for years will now be eligible for citizenship without having to wait for a residence authorization.

The law change is significant for Brazilians because it allows them to have the same rights as Portuguese citizens. "With citizenship, Brazilians will have the same rights and duties as Portuguese citizens," said Egypto. "This will make a big difference in their lives."

In conclusion, the new law is a game-changer for thousands of Brazilians living in Portugal. It simplified the process of obtaining citizenship, giving them the same rights as Portuguese citizens and opening up new opportunities for them.
