VISA and MasterCard are two major brands of credit cards available in most countries across the world. Most banks and financial institutions issue Visa and/or MasterCard credit card to their customers.

VISA and MasterCard are payment brands. They do not issue any credit cards directly and rather licence the right to use their brand to credit card issuers and acquirers. Issuing banks have a tie-up with VISA or MasterCard and provide such cards to the customer.

Acquirers process the transaction made by the customer, using the credit cards supplied by issuing bank. When a transaction takes place, the merchant establishes a connection with the acquirer, who process the transaction and seek approval from the issuer. The issuer, mostly the bank, takes a risk in that the customer will honour the transaction when they approve the transaction. The issuing bank gets an interchange fees for the risk they assume. Both VISA and MasterCard operate in a similar way, and for the customer, there is no real difference between these two cards. The terms and conditions associated with these cards, especially the charges, are set by the issuing bank or financial institution, and the contract is between the customer and the issuer. VISA or MasterCard does not deal directly with the customer or even the issuing bank. They deal with the acquirers.
